

HAMMOND'S MAJORITY EXPECTED TO EXCEED 40,000

HAMMOND IS CHOSEN

Democrat Wins Minnesota Contest.

VICTORY IS SWEEPING

Majority Over Lee Expected to Exceed 25,000.

St. Paul, Nov. 4.—Winfield Scott Hammond of St. James was elected eighteenth governor of the state of Minnesota by a plurality over his nearest opponent, William E. Lee of Long Prairie, variously estimated at from 25,000 to 35,000.

The victory of the Second district congressman was a sweeping one and his friends see in it a stinging rebuke to the campaign tactics of the opposition who endeavored to make the people believe that Mr. Hammond was under the domination of the breweries and other special interests.

The Democratic leader overwhelmed his Republican opponent in Ramsey county, carrying it by approximately 12,000. Hennepin county, supposedly a Lee stronghold, went for the St. James man by over 5,000. St. Louis county is claimed by the Democrats by 3,000.

The Third congressional district is expected to add at least another 4,000 to the Democratic lead. He also won his own, the Second district, by a comfortable margin, although reports from that section are meager.

In the Seventh and Ninth districts, where Lee counted on a crushing majority, he did little better than to break even, according to the preliminary reports. Hammond carried Crookston, Breckenridge, Warren, Ada and other large places, besides polling a surprisingly large vote in the country.

Stearns county returned an old time Democratic majority. The Democratic leader even ran strong in Kandiyohi county, the home and hub of the county option movement. He will not carry this strong Republican center, but his vote in sixteen precincts was less than 200 under that polled by Lee.

For any Democrat to carry the supposedly rock-ribbed Republican state of Minnesota is quite an accomplishment and when John A. Johnson sneaked over the line in 1904 with a lead of 7,500 he was heralded far and wide as a national character.

DILLINGHAM IS RETURNED

Vermont Republican Is Re-Elected Senator.

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 4.—In the fight for the United States senate between William P. Dillingham, the present senator, Republican, and the former interstate commerce commissioner, Charles A. Prouty, who had the indorsement of both Democrats and Progressives, complete returns from eleven out of fourteen counties give Dillingham a majority of 6,559.

The Republicans claimed safe majorities on the state ticket and in the congressional district.

GOVERNOR HANNA.

North Dakota Executive Secures Another Term.

LANDSLIDE FOR JOHNSON

California Progressive Has Plurality in Every Precinct.

San Francisco, Nov. 4.—Scattered returns from all sections of the state indicate a landslide to Governor Hiram W. Johnson, Progressive candidate for re-election over John D. Freericks, Republican, and John D. Curtin, Democrat.

For United States senator the early returns were too close to estimate a forecast.

At anti-prohibition headquarters it was assured that prohibition had been defeated more than 2 to 1.

CONGRESS STILL IS DEMOCRATIC

Republicans, However, Gain Numerous Seats in House.

New York, Nov. 4.—Heavy Republican gains throughout the country in Tuesday's election gave assurances of reducing the present Democratic majority of 141 in the house of representatives by a big margin.

Returns from various states show a net gain of forty-two seats for the Republicans.

Many districts are yet to be heard from. Republican leaders are jubilant over the prospects, some predicting that the Democratic majority might be overturned altogether by the final results.

Democratic control of the senate, however, was assured. It probably will be increased from ten to twelve if Roger C. Sullivan is elected in Illinois. The sweeping Republican victory in New York, the collapse of the Progressive vote throughout the country and the upheaval in the Democratic congressional districts, generally were taken as assurances by Republican partisans that the tariff had entered into the national political conflict with telling effect.

G. O. P. WINS IN MICHIGAN

Eleven Republicans Are Elected to Congress.

Detroit, Nov. 4.—Scattering returns indicate that at least eleven Republicans have been elected in Michigan and the two Progressive congressmen defeated for re-election.

Frank E. Dermus, Democrat, appears certain of election and S. W. Beakes, Democrat, was running a close race for re-election with Mark R. Bacon, Republican.

STEVENS APPEARS BEATEN

St. Paul Congressman Loses Race to Van Dyke.

St. Paul, Nov. 4.—Carl C. Van Dyke, Democrat, a man new to politics, probably was elected to succeed Congressman F. C. Stevens, Republican, as representative of the Fourth district, Ramsey county.

Mr. Van Dyke said: "I am confident of election. Forty precincts in St. Paul and Rosetown gave me 3,892 to 2,433 for my opponent."

Special to The Dispatch:—

St. Paul, Nov. 4, 12:45 P. M.—Indications now are that Hammond's majority may reach forty thousand. Vandyke's majority over Stevens in the fourth district is more than five thousand. Swensen, democrat, is leading by a few votes in the new Tenth district. All the other districts are republican.

GEO. L. BUNN HAS BEEN RE-ELECTED

Special to The Dispatch:—

St. Paul, Nov. 4, 2:50 P. M.—Justice George L. Bunn, state supreme court, has been re-elected for the six year term. His opponent, Albert Johnson, of Red Wing, seems to have been snowed under by 25,000 on the face of the returns at hand.

SULLIVAN CHOSEN SENATOR

Former Speaker Cannon Again an Illinois Congressman.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The election of Roger Sullivan, a Democrat, to succeed Lawrence Y. Sherman, Republican, in the United States senate and impressive Republican gains in congressional districts were the most striking features of Tuesday's election. Republican headquarters had no comment to make when informed that returns indicated a victory for Sullivan by 18,000 to 20,000 plurality. Sullivan himself claimed a much larger margin.

Among the Republican congressmen who were retired with the Taft administration who were elected to congress were: Joseph G. Cannon, former speaker of the house and William D. McKinley, former chairman of the Republican national congressional committee.

OREGON AND COLORADO DRY

Two Other States Remain Wet and Two to Be Heard From.

New York, Nov. 4.—Late returns indicated that of the six states that voted on prohibition Oregon and Colorado had gone dry and Ohio and California remain wet. Arizona and Washington had not been heard from.

In Ohio prohibition apparently was snowed under. The women's vote played a large part in Oregon and Colorado, where returns made it appear that the states had entered the dry column. Women voted also in California, but prohibition did not fare so well.

WILSON'S HOME REPUBLICAN

Fourth of New Jersey Elects Republican Congressman.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 4.—President Wilson's home congressional district, the Fourth of New Jersey, has elected Elijah C. Hutchinson, Republican, to succeed Congressman Allan R. Walsh, Democrat, by about 2,000 plurality.

Meager returns indicate strong Republican gains throughout the state and the Democrats probably will not have more than four or five of the twelve congressmen.

SHIVELY AHEAD IN INDIANA

Senator Probably Is Re-Elected by 30,000 to 35,000.

Indianapolis, Nov. 4.—From incomplete returns it was indicated that Senator B. F. Shively, Democrat, would be re-elected with a probable plurality between 30,000 and 35,000.

The Republicans gained two seats in congress, carrying the Seventh and Tenth districts, and are also conceded a chance in the Second and Ninth districts, where the race is close between Democratic congressmen and their Republican opponents.

Nye Again Minneapolis Mayor.

Minneapolis, Nov. 4.—Wallace G. Nye was re-elected mayor of Minneapolis by a majority which is expected to run close to 5,000. The majority received by Mayor Nye over his opponent, Alderman James D. Williams, was unexpected. Nye ran strong in every ward in the city.

Russia's Fisheries.

Russia ranks third among the fish and deep sea food producing countries of the world. The total yield of fish is well over $8,000,000 worth a year, but even this great supply is not equal to the needs of the population.

Our First Sawmill.

It is said that the first sawmill in the United States was at Jamestown, from which sawed boards were exported in June, 1607. A water power sawmill was in use in 1625 near the present site of Richmond.

BYRNE WINS ONCE MORE

SENATORSHIP IS CLOSE

Neck and Neck Race Between Burke and Johnson.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 4.—Returns from Tuesday's election in South Dakota are coming in very slowly and reports have been received from less than one-third of the 1,380 precincts in the state. The reports largely covered only the offices of United States senator and governor, with scattering returns on other offices.

That the Republicans have made a clean sweep, with the possible exception of United States senator and congressman in the Black Hills districts, is indicated by latest returns.

Congressman Charles Burke, Republican, for senator and Edward Johnson, Democrat, are running a neck and neck race.

In the Black Hills congressional district the Republicans claim the election of Judge William G. Rice, while the Democrats claim the election of Harry L. Gandy.

In the First district C. H. Dillon, Republican, was re-elected and Royal C. Johnson, Republican, nominee in the Second district, also has been elected. Governor Byrne, Republican, has been re-elected by a good majority.

Returns on woman suffrage and other separate matters are very meager. However, such returns as received indicated that woman's suffrage has been defeated.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE BEATEN

Compensation Act Also Seems Lost in Montana.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 4.—Scattering returns from Montana's election indicate the re-election of John M. Evans, Democrat, and Thomas Stout, Democrat, as congressmen-at-large, although the race is close against the Republican candidates. The Progressives are trailing far behind.

Woman suffrage is defeated two to one and indications point to the defeat of the workmen's compensation act.

DEMOCRATS ARE TURNED OUT

New Hampshire Elects Republican Governor and Senator.

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 4.—New Hampshire abandoned the Democratic regime of the past two years, electing a Republican governor, Roland G. Spaulding, by a plurality estimated at 8,000 over Albert W. Noone, Democrat.

The Republican victory extended to the United States senatorial fight, Senator Jacob H. Gallinger defeating Congressman Raymond B. Stevens, Edward Wason, Republican candidate for Stevens' seat in congress, defeated Charles French, Democrat, by a close vote. Cyrus A. Sulloway, former congressman, was re-elected to congress in the First district over Eugene E. Reed, Democrat.

HANNA WILL KEEP PLACE

Again Governor of North Dakota.

GRONNA FOR SENATOR

Present Incumbent Returned to Upper House of Congress.

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 4.—Republicans were victorious in Tuesday's election, the entire congressional and state tickets being elected.

The Democrats, however, have made big gains in many sections, particularly on the congressional ticket, but their gains were not sufficient to overturn heavy normal Republican majorities.

For United States senator Asle J. Gronna, Republican, has been re-elected by a plurality over W. E. Purcell, Democrat, estimated at about 10,000, on the face of early returns.

Congressman H. T. Heigesen, in the First district, had the hardest fight and his victory over Fred Bartholomew will be less than 3,000.

Congressman George M. Young, in the Third district, had little trouble in being re-elected. P. D. Norton has been re-elected in the Second district. Governor L. B. Hanna, in his race for re-election, showed heavy gain over two years ago and his total majority over Frank O. Hellstrom, the Democratic candidate, is estimated at more than 12,000.

Other Republican state candidates have been elected by greater majorities.

Woman suffrage has failed of indorsement by about 10,000 votes.

The fight for justice of the supreme court between Burleigh F. Spaulding and A. M. Christianson is close. It will require more complete returns before the race can be determined.

CUMMINS WINS IN IOWA

State Appears to Be Almost Solidly Republican.

Des Moines, Nov. 4.—Indications point positively to the re-election of Senator Albert Cummins, Republican, by a plurality estimated at 50,000 over Maurice Connolly, Democrat, and Casper Schenk, Progressive.

Returns from counties outside of Polk, in which Des Moines is located, were exceedingly slow in coming in. Schenk, the Progressive candidate, fell far behind his estimated strength.

In the governorship race Clarke, Republican, had a lead of slightly more than 4,000 votes on John T. Hamilton, the Democratic candidate. It was estimated that Clarke's plurality would be close to 15,000.

It was practically certain that Republican candidates for congress had been elected in all of the Iowa congressional districts except the Second and Third.

The Republican state ticket appears to have been elected and the state legislature seemed certain to be Republican.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE MEETS BIG DEFEAT.

New York, Nov. 4.—Returns indicated the defeat of the woman suffrage amendment in six states, Ohio, Nebraska, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana. Nevada also so voted the question of woman suffrage. The right of 2,939,007 women to vote was determined.

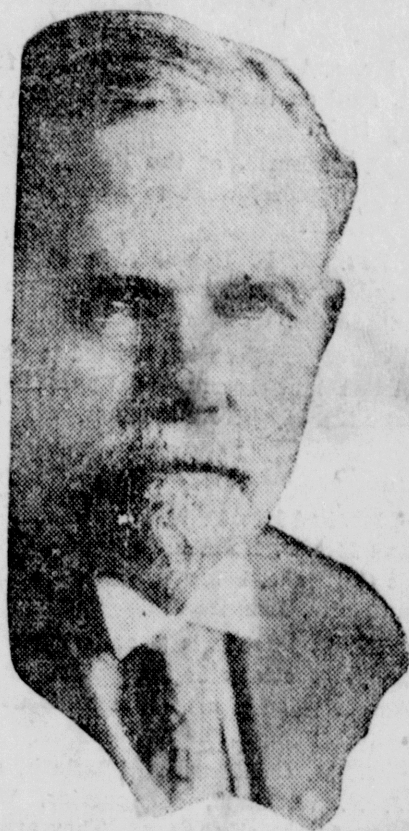

LONGWORTH WILL GO BACK

Roosevelt's Son-in-Law Runs Up Big Majority.

Cincinnati, Nov. 4.—Former Congressman Nicholas Longworth, Republican, turned the tables on his Democratic opponent, Stanley Bowdler, in the election in the First Ohio congressional district here by rolling up a substantial majority over the man who defeated him two years ago. "It is a smashing Republican victory all around," said Mr. Longworth.

FRANK M. BYRNE.

Governor of South Dakota Is Given Another Term.

SMOOT IS IN CLOSE RACE

Utah Senator Only Leads Fusion Candidate by Ninety.

Salt Lake City, Nov. 4.—With straight ballots counted on almost half the vote of the state Senator Smoot, Republican, leads Moyle, fusion, by only ninety votes. It is believed the vote of Salt Lake county, which casts about one-third the total vote of the state, will determine the result. However, Republican appears to be elected representative in the First district and Mayes, fusion, in the Second.

GLYNN BEATEN IN NEW YORK

Whitman Chosen Governor Over Present Incumbent.

New York, Nov. 4.—District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, Republican, was elected governor of New York by an approximate plurality of 125,000 over Martin H. Glynn, Democrat, the present incumbent.

William Sulzer, who was impeached and removed from office in the fall of 1913, running on the Prohibition and American tickets, finished third, polling, it appears on the race of incomplete returns, more than 60,000 votes. Frederick M. Davenport, Progressive, ran fourth with a total of 55,000 votes. James W. Wadsworth, Republican, has defeated James W. Gerard, Democrat, for the United States senatorship by about 50,000. Bainbridge Colby, Progressive, was third, with a vote that probably will not exceed 50,000.

In 4,898 districts out of 5,661 in the state the vote for governor stood: Whitman, 614,848; Glynn, 489,415; Sulzer, 100,500; Davenport, 43,407.

In 3,824 districts out of the total of 5,661 the vote for senator stood: Wadsworth, 452,388; Gerard, 420,603; Colby, 45,655.

Although the returns on the minor places on the state ticket are far from complete it is believed the Republican candidates have been carried through by Whitman's overwhelming majority. The Republican delegates to the constitutional convention are believed to be elected.

PENROSE LEADS IN CONTEST

Pennsylvania Goes Back Into the Republican Column.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Pennsylvania went back into the Republican column, that party electing Boies Penrose to the United States senate and Martin G. Brumbaugh as governor by pluralities that may exceed 200,000. The vote was unusually large, exceeding that cast for president in 1912.

The Republicans also elected their candidates for lieutenant governor and secretary of internal affairs, as well as four congressmen-at-large.

Gifford Pinchot, the Progressive candidate for senator, ran third, A. Mitchell Palmer, the Democratic candidate, being far ahead of him.

PHILLIP FOR GOVERNOR

Defeats Opponents in Wisconsin.

M'GOVERN FOR SENATOR

Almost Certain of Victory, Although Contest Is Close.

Milwaukee, Nov. 4.—Late returns from the election in Wisconsin, while not complete, indicate that Emmanuel Phillip, conservative Republican candidate for governor, will be elected by at least 25,000 votes, defeating John C. Karel, Democrat. John J. Blaine, independent, Senator La Follette's candidate, is running a poor third.

While the race for the United States senate to fill the vacancy to be caused by the retirement of Uncle Ike Stephenson is close the election of Governor Francis E. McGovern is almost certain. He was opposed by Paul Hustling, Democrat, and Emil Seldel, Socialist Democrat.

The Socialists probably have elected W. R. Gaylord to congress in the FRANCIS E. M'GOVERN.

Fourth over W. J. Cary, Republican, and Thomas A. Knopp, Democrat, was re-elected in the Ninth.

The election has practically overturned the policies of Senator La Follette. He championed the cause of John J. Blaine for governor and also the amendment for the initiative, referendum and recall and nine others, all of which will be defeated, it is indicated.

CLEAN SWEEP FOR G. O. P.

Connecticut Returns to the Republican Fold.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 4.—Connecticut returned to the Republican fold by making a clean sweep. Frank B. Brandegee was re-elected to the senate over Governor Baldwin by a safe majority.

With the vote nearly all counted indications pointed to the election of a solid Republican congressional delegation.

Among those probably elected to congress is former Representative E. J. Hill, a leading member of the ways and means committee. Judge Marcus H. Holcomb was elected governor.

One feature of the election was the slump in the Progressive vote.

CLARK VICTORY IS ASSURED

Champ's Opponent Concedes Defeat by About 3,000.

Montgomery, Mo., Nov. 4.—Early returns indicate the re-election of Champ Clark, Democrat, speaker of the house, by a majority of from 3,000 to 5,000 votes. John C. Brown, his Republican opponent, conceded his defeat by from 2,000 to 3,000 votes.

Senator Stone Is Re-Elected.

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—The re-election of Senator Stone, Democrat, by 62,000 plurality was asserted at Democratic headquarters. This was based on returns from all parts of the state.

Karel, Democrat. John J. Blaine, independent, Senator L. A. Follette's candidate, is running a poor third.

While the race for the United States senate to fill the vacancy to be caused by the retirement of Uncle Ike Stephenson is close the election of Governor Francis E. McGovern is almost certain. He was opposed by Paul Hustling, Democrat, and Emil Seidel, Socialist Democrat.

The Socialists probably have elected W. K. Gaylord to congress in the

The election has practically overturned the policies of Senator La Follette. He championed the cause of John J. Blaine for governor and also the amendment for the initiative, referendum and recall and nine others, all of which will be defeated, it is indicated.

CLEAN SWEEP FOR G. O. P.

Connecticut Returns to the Republican Fold.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 4.—Connecticut returned to the Republican fold by making a clean sweep. Frank B. Brandegee was re-elected to the senate over Governor Baldwin by a safe majority.

With the vote nearly all counted indications pointed to the election of a solid Republican congressional delegation.

Among those probably elected to congress is former Representative E. J. Hill, a leading member of the ways and means committee. Judge Marcus H. Holcomb was elected governor.

One feature of the election was the slump in the Progressive vote.

CLARK VICTORY IS ASSURED

Champ's Opponent Concedes Defeat by About 3,000.

Montgomery, Mo., Nov. 4.—Early returns indicate the re-election of Champ Clark, Democrat, speaker of the house, by a majority of from 3,000 to 5,000 votes. John C. Brown, his Republican opponent, conceded his defeat by from 2,000 to 3,000 votes.

Senator Stone Is Re-Elected.

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—The re-election of Senator Stone, Democrat, by 62,000 plurality was asserted at Democratic headquarters. This was based on returns from all parts of the state.

WHITE HOUSE HAS CHANGED
How the President's Palace Came to be called the "White House," and History for Century

On hundred years ago the "president's palace" at Washington was gutted by fire and from this event it became universally known as the "White House." It was at the time of the War of 1812. In the flickering light of burning Washington the scarlet coated figures of the incendiaries, the soldiers of the British king, were to be seen rioting in the streets of the city they had captured after President Madison and his cabinet and most of the citizens had fled at their approach. Some seized flaming brands from a burning saloon and thrust them into the draperies of the president's house. Mirrors, furniture and bric-a-brac were smashed, while the flames burned until they had gutted the interior and scorched the exterior. When the "palace" was repaired the fire marks were obliterated on the outside with white paint.

Today the White House is visited by more than 1,000 persons every day. More historical events have centered around this shining white mansion than around any like building in the world during the past century. Twenty-eight presidents and their families have lived in it, and two have died within its walls. Lincoln went from its Red Room to his assassination at Ford theatre; Garfield was carried unconscious to its shelter, where he lingered in pain from the assassin's bullet many weeks before he died at Elberton, N. BARTLETT TELLS OF ARCTIC WALK

Trapped Over Ice to Save His Comrades.

CRAWLED PART OF WAY.

"All In Day's Work," Says Explorer and Navigator Returned From Far North With Eight of Party After Losing Eleven Others—He Made Perilous Trip With Only One Eskimo.

After a bitter experience in the northern wastes, nine survivors of the Canadian arctic expedition, which left Esquimaux in June, 1913, arrived at Victoria, B. C. They were brought from Nome, Alaska, on the United States revenue cutter Bear. The party was headed by Captain Robert A. Bartlett, the famous explorer.

Eight of the exploration party were lost on the journey from the point where their ship Karluk was crushed by the ice to Wrangel island, and three died in camp at the island, one from an accident.

"All in the Day's Work." Captain Bartlett told the story of the Karluk's last voyage in bare facts. Relating a few of the obstacles he had to overcome on his tramp across the ice from Wrangel island to Emma Harbor, Siberia, he dismissed most questions as to his perils with a nonchalant "Well, it's all in the day's work."

Realizing that help must be summoned from somewhere or the entire party on Wrangel island would succumb through starvation, Captain Bartlett decided to set out on a walk which would bring him to the outside world. He knew the journey meant terrible hardships and possibly death.

"On March 18," he said, "I left the camp with an Eskimo boy, Kattovick, seven dogs and a sledge made by Mr. Hadley, the exact copy of a sledge used by Peary in his trips. We had supplies for ourselves and dogs for thirty-eight days. I intended to get to East Cape, Siberia. We had difficulty in crossing the strait which separates Wrangel island from the mainland, the air line distance being 100 miles.

"I thought when I left the island that I would make it in seven days, but strong easterly and westerly gales and the moving ice retarded our progress. As we neared the Siberian coast we had considerable difficulty with the rafted ice and deep, soft snow.

"On one occasion I was seventeen days making a distance of ninety miles. In some places the young ice was barely strong enough to support our sledge, and the ice would not support us in walking, so we had to cross it by lying flat on our stomachs and crawling across. Owing to the hardship of the journey several of my dogs gave out completely, and my native boy showed signs of losing his nerve.

"Early one morning I sighted land and hoped to reach it that evening. On seeing the land Kattovick became very active. More leads were encountered during the day, and I had to spend another night on the ice. The next day northerly winds set in and rattled the ice up on the Siberian shore. By working hard all day we managed to reach North Cape, Siberia.

sisted us in getting to East Cape. "Both Kattovick and myself were beginning to feel the effects of our hardships. My legs were swelling, and at times I experienced difficulty in walking. After more hardships I reached East Cape and there met an English trader. It was here that I met Baron Kilest, the Russian district commissioner for that part of Siberia.

"The baron offered to take me to Emma Harbor, Siberia, where his headquarters were located.

"The whaler Herman reached Emma Harbor during the latter part of May, and I immediately made arrangements to have the whaler take me to Nome, Alaska. When we arrived off Nome the roadstead was blocked with ice, so we headed for St. Michael.

"Eyes and Legs in Bad Shape. "Arriving there, I was still suffering from swollen legs and feet, and my eyes also were giving me trouble. After notifying the Canadian government by telegraph I received medical attention. In a week's time I had nearly recovered from my illness.

"While I was recuperating at St. Michael the cutter Bear arrived on June 5. She reached Nome Aug. 30. Four days later we started out on our second attempt to rescue the men at Wrangel island.

"On Sept. 5 we met the schooner King and Wing, and she informed us that she had the eight survivors from Wrangel island on board. The men were transferred to the Bear in order to receive medical attention. We then returned to Nome."

RIGHT LIVING.

Live right today and it will be a step toward living right tomorrow. No man has any right to expect to live differently tomorrow from the way in which he is living today. What he chooses for today he chooses for tomorrow. What he overcomes today he is overcoming for tomorrow. Yet most of us live as though we did not believe this, and we try hard to persuade ourselves that we are safe in so living.

AFFLICTIONS.

Afflictions sent by Providence melt the constancy of the noble minded, but confirm the obduracy of the vile. The same furnace that hardens clay liquefies gold, and in the strong manifestations of Divine power Pharaoh found his punishment, but David his pardon.—Colton.

WHITE HOUSE HAS CHANGED

How the President's Palace Came to be called the "White House," and History for Century

On hundred years ago the "pres-gotten by fire and from this event it became universally known as the "White House." It was at the time of the War of 1812. In the flickering

BARTLETT TELLS OF ARCTIC WALK

Tramped Over Ice to Save His Comrades.

CRAWLED PART OF WAY.

"All In Day's Work," Says Explorer and Navigator Returned From Far North With Eight of Party After Losing Eleven Others—He Made
Perilous Trip With Only One Eskimo.

After a bitter experience in the northern wastes, nine survivors of the Canadian arctic expedition, which left Esquimaux in June, 1913, arrived at Victoria, B. C. They were brought from Nome, Alaska, on the United States revenue cutter Bear. The party was headed by Captain Robert A. Bartlett, the famous explorer.

Eight of the exploration party were lost on the journey from the point where their ship Karluk was crushed by the ice to Wrangel island, and three died in camp at the island, one from an accident.

"All in the Day's Work."
Captain Bartlett told the story of the Karluk's last voyage in bare facts. Relating a few of the obstacles he had to overcome on his tramp across the ice from Wrangel island to Emma Harbor, Siberia, he dismissed most questions as to his perils with a nonchalant "Well, it's all in the day's work."

Realizing that help must be summoned from somewhere or the entire party on Wrangel island would succumb through starvation, Captain Bartlett decided to set out on a walk which would bring him to the outside world.
He knew the journey meant terrible hardships and possibly death.

"On March 18," he said, "I left the camp with an Eskimo boy, Kattovick, seven dogs and a sledge made by Mr.
Hadley, the exact copy of a sledge used by Peary in his trips. We had supplies for ourselves and dogs for thirty-eight days. I intended to get to East Cape, Siberia. We had difficulty in crossing the strait which separates Wrangel island from the mainland, the air line distance being 100 miles.

"I thought when I left the island that I would make it in seven days, but strong easterly and westerly gales and the moving ice retarded our progress.
As we neared the Siberian coast we had considerable difficulty with the rafted ice and deep, soft snow.

"On one occasion I was seventeen days making a distance of ninety miles.
In some places the young ice was barely strong enough to support our sledge, and the ice would not support us in walking, so we had to cross it by lying flat on our stomachs and crawling across. Owing to the hardship of the journey several of my dogs gave out completely, and my native boy showed signs of losing his nerve.

"Early one morning I sighted land and hoped to reach it that evening.
On seeing the land Kattovick became very active. More leads were encountered during the day, and I had to spend another night on the ice. The next day northerly winds set in and rattled the ice up on the Siberian shore. By working hard all day we managed to reach North Cape, Siberia.

"I saw no signs of habitation, so we camped for the night. The next morning we started along the Siberian coast for East Cape. One lone igloo was sighted, and we went in. In the ice hut I found a Siberian native, his wife and one child.

Saw Their First White Man.

"I came across the first white man at Koluchin bay. He made both of us at home, and we got considerable bread and tea. Being in need of a couple of good dogs I traded my binoculars to a native for two huskies. At Cape Serdze, Siberia, I met a trader who, after taking us in and feeding us, as

Rev. G. Phil Sheridan will continue his sermons on the latest fiction this Sunday evening. The book Mr. Sheridan will discuss is William J. Locke's "The Fortunate Youth," a book full of rich characters, mighty influences and compelling aspirations. It is a work every young man ought to read.

If you wish to be lifted out of the petty cares of today, read one of Locke's novels, his characters are worth knowing. Mr. Locke is a prince of story tellers and in this book he touches life at its core and sets one thinking of the seriousness of life and at the same time fires one with a holy desire to do and be something in this world.

Service will commence at 7:30. Everybody is invited.

Of Interest to Women

To remove scorch stains wet the scorched place, rub with soap and bleach in the sun.

Never attempt to can a vegetable that has matured and commenced to harden, and of course, a vegetable that has commenced to decay is of no use as an article of food.

Before washing fine lace or muslin collars and cuffs baste them on to a piece of heavier muslin, is an excellent way to prevent their tearing or stretching in the process of laundering.

During the winter time, when plants are kept in the house, if they are treated in the following manner it will help them to thrive. Sponge the leaves once a week with lukewarm water to which a little milk has been added. Then stand the plant for two hours in lukewarm water deep enough to completely cover the pot.

A HAPPY CHILD IN JUST A FEW HOURS

When cross, constipated or if feverish give "California Syrup of Figs" then don't worry

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs" because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomachache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed in each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Co. Hand back with contempt any Company." We make no smaller other fig syrup.—Advt.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

Children's Hour Will Have Exhibit Sent by Minnesota State Library Commission

Gift books for children should be selected with greatest care to form a taste for the best literature, for they are read over many times and are a treasured possession.

Picture books for the youngest children should be simple in conception, having regard to artistic worth and providing wholesome fun. Fables and Mother Goose rhymes are the next step and from these the child goes on to the delights of fairy story and folk lore, simple animals from the days when the world was young. These tales are a fitting introduction to the hero stories for the boys, and books of romance for the girls and prepare them for an appreciation of good literature. All along the way there is a wealth of good things which should be their as a rightful heritage.

Care should be taken also to provide the books in as attractive editions as possible, for the pleasure of reading is greatly enhanced by a book made up of good paper, clear print, beautiful illustrations and binding.

The directors of the Children's Hour have arranged to have an exhibit of some of the very best of children's books sent here by the Minnesota State Library commission, and they will be on display at the library Nov. 21st and 22nd. There will also be books suitable for gifts for children on sale during these two days, and orders will be taken for any of the books on display.

Every one interested in books for children is cordially invited to visit the library Friday or Saturday afternoon or evening, Nov. 21st and 22nd and look over the exhibit.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Grand

Tonight and Thursday is our usual weekly nights for European war slides direct from American Press Association, authentic and exclusive. Many interesting ones this time. Along with these the regular run feature "The Jackpot Club" which is the human interest story of James Bryant told in a dramatic fascinating way. One does not realize at first, during the unfolding of the unconventional situations and throbbing incidents, that a big problem is being dealt with. A strong drama of the west. "Fruits and Flowers," Nestor comedy. Harry and Jack, clerks, both love their employer's daughter. In their attempt to outdo each other they stir up an awful mess. What happens at the finish is accompanied by mighty laughs.

Our steady runs of perfect pictures makes a dollar bill for 10c.

At the Columbia

The vaudeville last night proved a very pleasing attraction. Maurice Costello in the "Blood Ruby" was one of the best plays in which we have ever seen this most popular actor. The Snakeville comedy was excellent. The Lubin play "Over the Crib" was a very good one reel drama. Altogether the entire show is worth the viewing and will be repeated again this evening. WELL DESERVED

The Praise That Comes from Thankful Brainerd People

One kidney remedy has known merit.

Brainerd people rely upon it. That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills.

Brainerd testimony proves it reliable.

Mrs. Caroline Sundberg, 1504 E. Pine St., Brainerd, Minn., says: "I suffered for several years from backache. I was uncomfortable while I was doing my work and often I could not sleep well. I was distressed by dizzy spells and often after I stood awhile, my feet swelled and bloated. The doctor said I had kidney trouble, but failed to help me. Finally I was told about Doan's Kidney Pills, and I got a box at H. P. Dunn's Drug Store. After using them I didn't have any more pains in my back, felt stronger and was better able to do my work. I was so pleased with the benefit I had that I recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. I gladly confirm that endorsement now. The benefit I got has been permanent."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Sundberg had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advt.

Curious Laws in India.

Some of the old laws of Nepal, India, were curious. Killing cows ranked with murder as a capital offense, for instance. Every girl at birth was married with great ceremony to a betel fruit, which was then cast into a sacred stream. As the fate of the fruit was uncertain, the girl was supposed never to become a widow. To obtain divorce from a husband a wife had only to place a betel nut under his pillow and depart.

In Nepal the day is considered to begin when it is light enough to count the tiles on the roof or distinguish the hairs on a man's hand against the sky.—Exchange.

Hard to Explain.

It was a soulful night, and they sat together in the parlor. The following conversation was going on:

He—I gave you that parrot as a birthday present, did I not, Matilda? She—Yes; but surely, Albert, you are not going to speak of your gifts as if— He—It was young and speechless at the time? She—Yes (with increasing wonder), and it has never been out of this parlor. He—There are no other young ladies in this house? She—No, there are not. He—Then why—why, when I kissed your photograph in your album while waiting for you did that wretched bird imitate your voice and say, "Don't do that, Charlie; please don't?"—Exchange.

GOOD HABITS.

Good habits bring a personal freedom that it is impossible to obtain otherwise. The man who has the habit of doing anything that he ought to do with clocklike regularity is saved from a galling bondage of uncertainty, hesitation, energy wasting debate with himself, renewed day after day and growing more of a burden as life advances.

Next Thing to It.

"How terribly mangled that poor man was they took to the hospital in the patrol! Was he in a railroad wreck?"

"No. He was one of the judges of a baby show."—Baltimore American.

DEMOCRATS SEEK TO REPAIR BREACH

Hope For Harmony When Next Session Gets Under Way.

COTTON STATES MEN SORE.

Some Representatives Say They Will Act Absolutely Independently in the Future—President Tells Southerners They Are Seeing Ghosts, and That Situation Is Daily Improving.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—During the fierce fight of the southern men for cotton relief and several days afterward President Wilson told them they were scared, that the situation was improving and it was hoped it would come out all right.

It recalls the days when the northern Republicans were making strong protests to President Taft against the Canadian reciprocity measure, which, they said, would injure the farmers on the northern border. "You are seeing ghosts," was President Taft's reply to these protests.

In the election which followed it was evident that the northern men continued to see ghosts, for they voted like men who were scared. If there were two parties in the south we might see a repetition of that ghost dance in some of the southern states. But, no matter what happens, the south will be Democratic.

Hope For Harmony.

Democrats in Washington, most of them connected with the federal administration, hope for harmony when congress reassembles, but there is fear that the split and ill feeling which were engendered at the close of the session will continue. Many Democrats departed for their homes in a bad frame of mind. Some of them have declared their intention to be independent in the future and go their own way regardless of the administration and the patronage which it controls. Some of those who have been treated best in the matter of patronage have parted with the administration on account of cotton. Harmony may be restored after the election.

Repatries in the House.

During the warm debates in the house when cotton was the principal topic Glass, of Virginia, favoring a banking measure, and Henry of Texas, favoring a cotton amendment, had several lively skirmishes. At one stage something was said about courage to meet an issue.

"You speak of courage," retorted Henry. "I am going to undertake to assert a little courage, too, and so far as I am concerned we will not only lay your bill on the table, but we will lay it under the daisies and turn its toes to the heavens forever."

"When the cotton growers of Texas," replied Glass, "find out what you have done to deprive them of relief they will lay you under the daisies and turn your toes to heaven."

Carabao Under Censor.

The Military Order of the Carabao is to have a dinner this fall, it is said, but it will be under a censorship. There will be no song about damning the insurgents, which is said to have caused the reprimand of officers of the army and navy last year. The real cause of the reprimand must have been the production of the so called battle-ships "Fellowship" and "Friendship," named by Mr. Bryan, followed by another of similar pattern called "Piffle." Those who were present rather guess where the shoe pinched and do not ascribe it to the song.

Rely on Simmons.

The Democrats of the senate during the two long sessions since they have had control of that body have come to rely on Senator Simmons of North Carolina as the best manager of legislation they have on their side. He had charge of three important measures, the tariff bill, the emergency revenue bill and the river and harbor bill. While it is true that he did not get the latter measure through in the shape desired, he at least put it through. As to the other measures he was successful in putting them through about as he wanted them. Simmons is the smallest man in the senate, but he attends to business all the time.

Gone With His Question Mark.

Before the final adjournment of the late session Senator West of Georgia departed, taking with him his interrogation point. He was the most persistent man with questions who has been in congress in many a day. There were no subjects under debate that were not subjects of questions by the Georgia senator. When the election is over he will cease to be a senator and will be succeeded in the next session by Hardwick, who has been a member of the house for several years.

Getting Ready For Gardner.

When Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts returns to Washington he will find quite a stack of literature awaiting him, much of it containing protests against his advocacy of better military preparation. There are many letters received at the war department these days advocating entire disarmament in order to give the world an example of a real peace loving nation and our determination to have no more war. No doubt the writers will send similar missives to Gardner.

ENGLAND PROVIDES RUM

War Office Sends 150,000 Gallons to the Front, Liquor is Pure Sugar Cane With No Spirits

Under a London date line of Oct. 31st a cablegram says:

The British war office is sending to the front a consignment of 150,000 gallons of rum. The bottling of this quantity, which in ordinary circumstances would probably represent an excise duty of something like $300,000, is being undertaken by the Port of London Authority and the Rum Quay at the West India docks offers a scene of exceptional activity even for a department which is accustomed to deal with thousands of puncheons in the course of a year.

The huge vats at the West India docks, which have an aggregate capacity of 58,000 gallons, are of course available for the blending of this army rum. All of it is genuine sugar cane product, requiring no addition of spirit, since it is already much over proof. Some of it was imported in 1911 and some in succeeding years, but the age is not necessarily indicated by the date of importation. Emerging from the vats 4.5 per cent under proof, the rum is measured by the gallon and passed through funnels into stoneware jars of the customary type, and each one gallon capacity. The jars are then corked and sealed with the seal of the port authority.

The next stage is the packing of the rum. For convenient handling it is placed in wooden cases, which accommodate a couple of jars. The case is kept to a size which can easily be lifted by one man, so as to give as little trouble as possible in distributing the rum among widely scattered troops. Each case bears an intimation that it forms part of the army supplies.

About 3000 jars of rum are sent away each day. The destination is Newhaven via Willow Walk Railway station. From the Sussex port the consignments go to the most convenient continental port, thereafter to be forwarded to the base of operations. Large supplies of jars, of which a total of 150,000 will, of course be required, arrive daily at the West India docks.

With the active co-operation of the customs the work of bottling proceeds until 6 p. m., instead of 4 p. m., as is usual in the case of bonded warehouses. In this war, and with the employment of a large staff of men, this big war office order is in process of careful execution.

MAN IN CONE DOES IT

Is Lowered Near Earth While Dirigible Remains Invisible up in the Sky When Bomb Freed

A deadly improvement in Zeppelin war craft has been introduced into the present war by the Germans. The dirigible is stopped at a height of several thousand feet so that at night it is invisible from the earth.

Then a steel clad cone is lowered on a cable to point within 800 feet of the earth. In this cone sits a man. Through the open bottom he can sight with great accuracy, telephone up several thousand feet and direct the movements of the Zeppelin as he wishes. At the desired moment he pulls a lever and a bomb drops to the target below. One type of bomb is meant for use on fortresses, another type for the steel protected decks of warships.

The cone in which the man sits is so small that it is practically safe from damage. Rifle bullets would be deflected by its steel surface.

The Zeppelins are stated to have evolved the more accurate system of bomb dropping. It is said that they can easily hit a square 15 yards across from a great height.

Of Interest to Women

To remove scorch stains wet the scorched place, rub with soap and bleach in the sun.

Never attempt to can a vegetable that has matured and commenced to harden, and of course, a vegetable that has commenced to decay is of no use as an article of food.

Before washing fine lace or muslin collars and cuffs baste them on to a piece of heavier muslin, is an excellent way to prevent their tearing or stretching in the process of laundering.

During the winter time, when plants are kept in the house, if they are treated in the following manner it will help them to thrive. Sponge the leaves once a week with lukewarm water to which a little milk has been added. Then stand the plant for two hours in lukewarm water deep enough to completely cover the pot.

A HAPPY CHILD IN

JUST A FEW HOURS

When cross, constipated or if feverish give "California Syrup of Figs" then don't worry

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs" because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomachache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed in each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Co.," and back with contempt any other company. We make no smaller other fig syrup.—Advt.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

Children's Hour Will Have Exhibit Sent by Minnesota State Library Commission

Gift books for children should be selected with greatest care to form a taste for the best literature, for they are read over many times and are a treasured possession.

Picture books for the youngest children should be simple in conception, having regard to artistic worth and providing wholesome fun. Fables and Mother Goose rhymes are the next step and from these the child goes on to the delights of fairy story and folk lore, simple animals from the days when the world was young. These tales are a fitting introduction to the hero stories for the boys, and books of romance for the girls and prepare them for an appreciation of good literature. All along the way there is a wealth of good things which should be their as a rightful heritage.

Care should be taken also to provide the books in as attractive editions as possible, for the pleasure of reading is greatly enhanced by a book made up of good paper, clear print, beautiful illustrations and binding.

The directors of the Children's Hour have arranged to have an exhibit of some of the very best of children's books sent here by the Minnesota State Library commission, and they will be on display at the library Nov. 21st and 22nd. There will also be books suitable for gifts for children on sale during these two days, and orders will be taken for any of the books on display.

Every one interested in books for children is cordially invited to visit the library Friday or Saturday afternoon or evening, Nov. 21st and 22nd and look over the exhibit.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Grand

Tonight and Thursday is our usual weekly nights for European war slides direct from American Press Association, authentic and exclusive. Many interesting ones this time. Along with these the regular run feature "The Jackpot Club" which is the human interest story of James Bryant told in a dramatic fascinating way. One does not realize at first, during the unfolding of the unconventional situations and throbbing incidents, that a big problem is being dealt with. A strong drama of the west. "Fruits and Flowers," Nestor comedy. Harry and Jack, clerks, both love their employer's daughter. In their attempt to outdo each other they stir up an awful mess. What happens at the finish is accompanied by mighty laughs.

Our steady runs of perfect pictures makes a dollar bill for 10c.

At the Columbia

The vaudeville last night proved a very pleasing attraction. Maurice Costello in the "Blood Ruby" was one of the best plays in which we have ever seen this most popular actor. The Snakeville comedy was excellent. The Lubin play "Over the Crib" was a very good one reel drama. Altogether the entire show is worth the viewing and will be repeated again this evening. WELL DESERVED

The Praise That Comes from Thankful Brainerd People

One kidney remedy has known merit.

Brainerd people rely upon it.

That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills.

Brainerd testimony proves it reliable.

Mrs. Caroline Sundberg, 1504 E. Pine St., Brainerd, Minn., says: "I suffered for several years from back-ache. I was uncomfortable while I was doing my work and often I could not sleep well. I was distressed by dizzy spells and often after I stood awhile, my feet swelled and bloated. The doctor said I had kidney trouble, but failed to help me. Finally I was told about Doan's Kidney Pills, and I got a box at H. P. Dunn's Drug Store. After using them I didn't have any more pains in my back, felt stronger and was better able to do my work. I was so pleased with the benefit I had that I recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. I gladly confirm that endorsement now. The benefit I got has been permanent."

Curious Laws in Nepal.

Some of the old laws of Nepal, India, were curious. Killing cows ranked with murder as a capital offense, for instance. Every girl at birth was married with great ceremony to a betel fruit, which was then cast into a sacred stream. As the fate of the fruit was uncertain, the girl was supposed never to become a widow. To obtain divorce from a husband a wife had only to place a betel nut under his pillow and depart.

In Nepal the day is considered to begin when it is light enough to count the tiles on the roof or distinguish the hairs on a man's hand against the sky.—Exchange.

Hard to Explain.

It was a soulful night, and they sat together in the parlor. The following conversation was going on:

He—I gave you that parrot as a birthday present. Did I not, Matilda? She—Yes; but surely, Albert, you are not going to speak of your gifts as if— He—It was young and speechless at the time? She—Yes (with increasing wonder), and it has never been out of this parlor. He—There are no other young ladies in this house? She—No, there are not. He—Then why—why, when I kissed your photograph in your album while waiting for you did that wretched bird imitate your voice and say, "Don't do that, Charlie; please don't?"—Exchange.

GOOD HABITS.

Good habits bring a personal freedom that it is impossible to obtain otherwise. The man who has the habit of doing anything that he ought to do with clocklike regularity is saved from a galling bondage of uncertainty, hesitation, energy wasting debate with himself, renewed day after day and growing more of a burden as life advances.

Next Thing to It.

"How terribly mangled that poor man was they took to the hospital in the patrol! Was he in a railroad wreck?"

"No. He was one of the judges of a baby show."—Baltimore American.

DEMOCRATS SEEK TO REPAIR BREACH

Hope For Harmony When Next Session Gets Under Way.

COTTON STATES MEN SORE.

Some Representatives Say They Will Act Absolutely Independently in the Future—President Tells Southerners They Are Seeing Ghosts—and That Situation Is Daily Improving.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—During the fierce fight of the southern men for cotton relief and several days afterward President Wilson told them they were scared, that the situation was improving and it was hoped it would come out all right.

It recalls the days when the northern Republicans were making strong protests to President Taft against the Canadian reciprocity measure, which, they said, would injure the farmers on the northern border. "You are seeing ghosts," was President Taft's reply to these protests.

In the election which followed it was evident that the northern men continued to see ghosts, for they voted like men who were scared. If there were two parties in the south we might see a repetition of that ghost dance in some of the southern states. But, no matter what happens, the south will be Democratic.

Hope For Harmony.

Democrats in Washington, most of them connected with the federal administration, hope for harmony when congress reassembles, but there is fear that the split and ill feeling which were engendered at the close of the session will continue. Many Democrats departed for their homes in a bad frame of mind. Some of them have declared their intention to be independent in the future and go their own way regardless of the administration and the patronage which it controls. Some of those who have been treated best in the matter of patronage have parted with the administration on account of cotton. Harmony may be restored after the election.

Repartee in the House.

During the warm debates in the house when cotton was the principal topic Glass of Virginia, favoring a banking measure, and Henry of Texas, favoring a cotton amendment, had several lively skirmishes. At one stage something was said about courage to meet an issue.

"You speak of courage," retorted Henry. "I am going to undertake to assert a little courage, too, and so far as I am concerned we will not only lay your bill on the table, but we will lay it under the daisies and turn its toes to the heavens forever."

"When the cotton growers of Texas," replied Glass, "find out what you have done to deprive them of relief they will lay you under the daisies and turn your toes to heaven."

Carabao Under Censor.

The Military Order of the Carabao is to have a dinner this fall, it is said, but it will be under a censorship. There will be no song about damning the insurgents, which is said to have caused the reprimand of officers of the army and navy last year. The real cause of the reprimand must have been the production of the so called battle-ships "Fellowship" and "Friendship," named by Mr. Bryan, followed by another of similar pattern called "Piffle." Those who were present rather guess where the shoe pinched and do not ascribe it to the song.

Rely on Simmons.

The Democrats of the senate during the two long sessions since they have had control of that body have come to rely on Senator Simmons of North Carolina as the best manager of legislation they have on their side. He had charge of three important measures, the tariff bill, the emergency revenue bill and the river and harbor bill. While it is true that he did not get the latter measure through in the shape desired, he at least put it through. As to the other measures he was successful in putting them through about as he wanted them. Simmons is the smallest man in the senate, but he attends to business all the time.

Going With His Question Mark. Before the final adjournment of the late session Senator West of Georgia departed, taking with him his interrogation point. He was the most persistent man with questions who has been in congress in many a day. There were no subjects under debate that were not subjects of questions by the Georgia senator. When the election is over he will cease to be a senator and will be succeeded in the next session by Hardwick, who has been a member of the house for several years.

Getting Ready For Gardner. When Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts returns to Washington he will find quite a stack of literature awaiting him, much of it containing protests against his advocacy of better military preparation. There are many letters received at the war department these days advocating entire disarmament in order to give the world an example of a real peace loving nation and our determination to have no more war. No doubt the writers will send similar missives to Gardner.

ENGLAND PROVIDES RUM

War Office Sends 150,000 Gallons to the Front, Liquor is Pure Sugar Cane With No Spirits

Under a London date line of Oct. 31st a cablegram says:

The British war office is sending to the front a consignment of 150,000 gallons of rum. The bottling of this quantity, which in ordinary circumstances would probably represent an excise duty of something like $300,000, is being undertaken by the Port of London Authority and the Rum Quay at the West India docks offers a scene of exceptional activity even for a department which is accustomed to deal with thousands of puncheons in the course of a year.

The huge vats at the West India docks, which have an aggregate capacity of 58,000 gallons, are of course available for the blending of this army rum. All of it is genuine sugar cane product, requiring no addition of spirit, since it is already much over proof. Some of it was imported in 1911 and some in succeeding years, but the age is not necessarily indicated by the date of importation. Emerging from the vats 4.5 per cent under proof, the rum is measured by the gallon and passed through funnels into stoneware jars of the customary type, and each one gallon capacity. The jars are then corked and sealed with the seal of the port authority.

The next stage is the packing of the rum. For convenient handling it is placed in wooden cases, which accommodate a couple of jars. The case is kept to a size which can easily be lifted by one man, so as to give as little trouble as possible in distributing the rum among widely scattered troops. Each case bears an intimation that it forms part of the army supplies.

About 3000 jars of rum are sent away each day. The destination is Newhaven via Willow Walk Railway station. From the Sussex port the consignments go to the most convenient continental port, thereafter to be forwarded to the base of operations. Large supplies of jars, of which a total of 150,000 will, of course be required, arrive daily at the West India docks.

With the active co-operation of the customs the work of bottling proceeds until 6 p. m., instead of 4 p. m., as is usual in the case of bonded warehouses. In this war, and with the employment of a large staff of men, this big war office order is in process of careful execution.

Cholera is increasing to an alarming extent throughout Austria-Hungary, the epidemic being worst in Galicia where 100 deaths daily among the troops in the field are reported. The disease if it continues will be as disastrous to human life as the war.

C. E. Staples has now one newspaper and it gives every promise of covering the field that the two endeavored to do duty to. One newspaper in a town, well supported, is worth more to the community than a half dozen that have to struggle for an existence.

Soldering Aluminum.

When holes appear in aluminum utensils it is not necessary to discard the dishes as no longer useful, for by a simple method they can be made to take solder. Insert a brass or copper rivet in the hole, flatten both ends and then solder over both the inside and the outside surfaces in the usual manner. If you wish to solder a piece to a sound part of the utensil use a sharp awl to punch holes for holding spots of copper or brass. If the aluminum is very thick cut the holes with a small drill held in a carpenter's bit brace.

Bullet Wounds.

The entrance wound caused by the modern small arm bullet is not a gruesome spectacle. It is small, and its appearance has been compared to that produced by the bite of a certain parasite insect. THE SUPPRESSION OF NEWS

The Florida Orlando Sentinel contains the following: This week we looked in a neighboring exchange expecting to see an account of how a young man had gone wrong as it appeared in the daily papers. Not a line about the young man could we find. And we know why, at once. A heartbroken wife or relative had gone to the editor, and asked him "to say nothing" and the editor listened and the tears had won the promise from him. We have gone through the same thing ourselves dozen of times. An editor is only human. He has his likes and dislikes: he loves and he hates; his strength between love and duty is just like that of the average citizen. We remember one case in particular. We had let a certain thing go by unmentioned because a tearful mother, bowed down with her cross, had come to us and begged the favor.

A big-headed man jumped up about it and called us a coward for so doing. A short time afterwards the shadow fell across his threshold and he came running and begging us to say nothing.

"Yes," we replied, "but don't you remember how you called us a coward for keeping still?" "I know," he replied, "but I was wrong. It is different now." And we listened even to him. There are things that an can forget with propriety. As far as we are concerned we would rather lessen the grief of a parent than throw out a morsel for the vulgar, gossiping public to feed upon. We would rather wipe away tears from the eyes of a mother than to "have nerve" enough to join a heartless crowd of flying tongues and sink the iron deeper into her tender soul. So when in this neighboring paper we failed to find what we wanted, we made no comment. But down deep in our heart we admired that editor and liked him because he had a heart that was tender, and he would rather listen to the jibes of an unfeeling public than to the sobs of the heart-broken mother and wife.

Realism.

A certain fiction writer applied to a friend, an interne in a hospital, for some local color for a tale he had based upon an occurrence in such an institution.

"The interne couldn't think of anything of moment, but the writer jogged his memory thus:

"Surely you know of some realistic bit here that I could use."

"I have it!" suddenly exclaimed the interne.

"Yes," eagerly came from the writer.

"Here is realism with a vengeance," said the youthful interne. "One of our patients walked in his sleep because he dreamed he had no car fare." —New York Globe.

Madison and the Constitution.

It is generally understood that James Madison was the chief author of the constitution of the United States. Beyond a doubt the great instrument was the joint product of the entire convention, but from the best accounts Madison was the man who put it into shape as we have it today. —New York American.

Rather Too Light.

The landlady who had not a reputation for overfeeding her boarders asked her solitary boarder as he looked dolefully at his supper, "Shall I light the gas?"

ROUMANIA'S QUEEN RULES THE THRONE

Beautiful and Brilliant Consort Has Russian Sympathies.

Popular interest in the accession to the throne of King Ferdinand of Roumania centers to a great extent in his brilliant and beautiful consort. The object of many a romantic infatuation, the heroine of countless stories, both true and untrue, but based in all cases upon her powers of fascination and her reputation for coquetry, she has from the very outset of her marriage emphasized by her striking individuality the insignificance of her husband, whom she completely overshadows.

of Roumania. Her father, who was Queen Victoria's second and sailor son, still bore the English title of duke of Edinburgh, for it was not until several months later that he succeeded to the German throne of his uncle as sovereign of the duchies of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

She had been born at Eastwell park, the country seat in Kent which her parents occupied throughout the greater part of their life in England, and her Russian grandfather, Czar Alexander II, the liberator of the serfs, was present at her christening there, that being his last visit to England.

Influenced by her mother, daughter of Czar Alexander II, Queen Marie is intensely pro-Russian in her sympathies, and it has been largely through her influence that Russia has obtained the upper hand in Bukharest. To what extent the new queen will dominate the Roumanian government remains to be seen. Ever since her marriage she has been the acknowledged leader of society at Bukharest, one of the gayest capitals of Europe. But she has won more than social distinction, for she is widely known for her devotion to the relief of suffering. When Asiatic cholera spread havoc through the Balkans during the last two wars this dainty and beautiful woman, regarded by the public as wholly given over to frivolity, became a nurse in the cholera hospitals and detention camps and gained universal respect by her assiduous attention to her duties as a nurse.

AUTOS IN WARFARE PROVE INVALUABLE

Motorcars Have Many Important Military Uses.

Napoleon said that an army moves upon its belly, but the modern hosts at war in Europe may be said to move upon their automobiles, both in the commissary significance meant by the Corsican and in a score of other senses. For of all the innovations introduced in the warfare of 1914 none is more outstanding than the employment of thousands upon thousands of motorcars such as we see rolling peacefully through the streets devoted to pleasure, to ease and to industry.

Motorcars are omnipresent in every phase of military activity upon the continent. Great trucks, preceding the main bodies of infantry, drag up the big field and siege guns to their post-tions. They dart about the firing line, distributing food and ammunition to the soldiers in their trenches. They bear dispatches from corps to corps. Field officers ride in limousines instead of upon horses. As in peace, so the automobile has supplanted the horse in war for almost every purpose save those of bearing cavalry on charges across rough fields and of dragging the lighter field pieces and machine guns.

Besides the motorcar's obvious use as a means of transport, other extraordinary employments have been found for it on both sides of the struggle. For instance, the Belgians have a fleet of what they call land cruisers. They are automobiles protected with armor and mounting a machine gun. They depend upon their speed to escape the pursuit of cavalry and upon their armor for protection from rifle fire.

These cruisers, or, better, destroyers on terra firma, are reported to have inflicted severe damage upon detachments of Germans in several instances. They rush at high speed through the very lines of the enemy, scattering death through the loopholes. They pause to dynamite a bridge or a railroad track so as to imperil the hostile line of communication and then dash back again to safety.

Autos in warfare have created the necessity for gasoline. Hence the Russians have overrun the province of Galicia, rich in petroleum fields from which Germany and Austria could replenish their gasoline supplies.

HOSPITAL FOR INEBRIATES

Report of the Board of Control on this State Institution Which is Located at Willmar

A state institution of unusual interest, because of the experimental character of its work, is the hospital farm for inebriates located at Willmar. This hospital, with a farm of about 600 acres attached, was opened about eighteen months ago and is mostly maintained by a two per cent tax on all retail liquor licenses issued in the state.

With an existence period of less than two years to its credit and much of that given over to getting the farm and buildings in shape, conclusive results are hardly obtainable at this time, but that the Willmar hospital farm will eventually show satisfactory returns is without question. This year the institution makes its first biennial report.

Since the Willmar institution was opened a total of 241 voluntary patients have been cared for. Of the patients a little over thirteen per cent were women. Seven were discharged as insane and 53 were released under bond in care of relatives. Nine patients were discharged as not proper subjects either incorrigible or so mentally incapacitated as to render treatment useless.

With the work entrusted to it largely experimental and the treatment of those confined in the institution a matter of individual study progress has been more or less slow. In no sense a penal institution, but with every patient enjoying the fullest freedom, escapes have been frequent and problems covering discipline and treatment many. Each difficulty has had to be met by the board of control which is in charge, and the medical staff at the farm, and each corrected with a view to future uniformity in the matter of treatment and control.

One of the annoying things has been the matter of escapes. In all there have been 108 listed, of which one was a woman. This large number of escapes is explained by the fact that a number left the institution without permission several times. When returned these escaped patients still enjoyed the privileges that those who obeyed shared in. The feature of the institution to date has been very discouraging to those in charge, but corrective measures are now being planned which it is hoped will reduce the number of escapes to the minimum.

Where family conditions demand it or a cure is made patients are released under bond and so far the plan has worked fairly satisfactory. They are placed in the care of relatives or friends, and the knowledge that these persons are responsible for their future sobriety has had a beneficial effect. As showing what the inebriate hospital has done, out of 28 alcoholic and drug victims admitted 21 were so far relieved that their transfer to the insane institutions of the state was prevented. Each when admitted showed decided mental disturbance, but as a result of the treatment given them the number named was prevented from becoming a further charge on the tax payers.

Because of the newness of the Willmar hospital—in fact it has really been in operation less than a year as far as treatment for those alcoholically afflicted is concerned—there is much ignorance throughout the state concerning even its existence. Its real purposes are not understood by many. It should not be confused with drink cure establishments of advertised fame. Quoting those in charge: "It is not alone the present condition of patients brought to the institution that is involved, but the future. The treatment of the immediate effect of alcoholic or drug indulgence is the easiest part of the work, and the Willmar institution directs its energies to building up the system through the medium of baths and substantial food. These, together with a certain amount of daily labor, act as a tonic and soon the desire for alcohol or its drug substitutes is gone. Sometimes drugs are necessary when the patient is in a bad way, but their use is not often."

Quoting the medical staff of the hospital again: "There is the future to fear. The patient must go out into the world and again engage in the daily struggle for his livelihood. Our aim is to see that he is able to resist temptation. We must prepare him for it. We must build up his body and his character. That is the only complete cure."

In the opinion of the management six months at the farm is necessary for complete recovery though in some cases a longer time is desirable. This is especially so in the case of those afflicted with the drug habit.

To those with a taste for research the Willmar institution is interesting. All kinds of statistics are compiled by those in charge and they cover every phase of the work assigned the hospital. For instance, the figures show that Ramsey county contributed 67 of the patients so far, of whom 17 were females, and Hennepin county 59, of whom 9 were females. As to occupation, the largest number of those confined were classified as laborers, numbering 59. In order came farmers, 21; clerks, 14; and painters 11. Only 4 barkeepers and two saloon keepers were listed. On the women's side of the house 24 housewives were registered. Next to Minnesota with 89 patients, Iowa came in point of nativity. It was credited with 12 patients. Norway was credited with 16 patients and Germany 10.

In social condition the married patients numbered 112, single 83, widowed 14, separated 3, and divorced 15. Of the female patients 21 were married. All acknowledged to good education. No less than 14 had attended the university. The majority of those registered admitted that they had formed the liquor habit when under 20 years of age. Associates were held to be responsible for their condition by 160 patients. The steady drinkers numbered 130 and the periodical drinkers 76.

Most of the patients were in a fair physical condition. Contrary to the claims of some who contend that inebriety is hereditary 104 of the patients furnished records to show that their parents were abstemious. The same was the case with 14 of the women patients. In the use of tobacco 103 men and nine women ad-

The schools throughout Germany have dispensed with the usual course of instruction as 10,000 teachers have gone to the front. In Russia also the schools have been closed.

Cholera is increasing to an alarming extent throughout Austria-Hungary, the epidemic being worst in Galicia where 100 deaths daily among the troops in the field are reported. The disease if it continues will be as disastrous to human life as the war.

The sentencing of the actual slayer of Archduke Ferdinand to 20 years imprisonment instead of death may mean that he is being saved in order to get first hand information as to who is really responsible for the murder. His known accomplices were all given a death penalty.

Robert W. Sears, founder of the firm of Sears, Roebuck & Co., left a fortune of $17,500,000 to his widow. The will disposing of the huge estate was a record for brevity containing but a total of 122 words. His fortune was made in the catalogue business from which he retired ten years ago.

The Panama canal has been closed for the second time because of a landslide. Landslides are bad, especially at election time. The politician whose career is closed by a landslide is in a worse condition than the canal, for that is expected to be opened within a few days, while the majority of office seekers who are silenced seldom get into action again, except to tell you how it happened.

One newspaper in a town, well supported, is worth more to the community than a half dozen that have to struggle for an existence.

Soldering Aluminium.

When holes appear in aluminium utensils it is not necessary to discard the dishes as no longer useful, for by a simple method they can be made to take solder. Insert a brass or copper rivet in the hole, flatten both ends and then solder over both the inside and the outside surfaces in the usual manner. If you wish to solder a piece to a sound part of the utensil use a sharp awl to punch holes for holding spots of copper or brass. If the aluminium is very thick cut the holes with a small drill held in a carpenter's bit brace.

THE SUPPRESSION OF NEWS

The Florida Orlando Sentinel contains the following: This week we looked in the daily papers. Not a young man had gone wrong as it appeared in the daily papers. Not a line about the young man could be found. And we know why, at once. A heartbroken wife or relative had gone to the editor, and asked him "to say nothing" and the editor listened and the tears had won the promise from him. We have gone through the same thing ourselves dozen of times. An editor is only human. He has his likes and dislikes; he loves and he hates; his strength between love and hate is just like that of the average citizen. We remember one case in particular. We had let a certain thing go by unmentioned because a tearful mother, bowed down with her cross, had come to us and begged the favor.

A big-headed man jumped up about it and called us a coward for so doing. A short time afterwards the shadow fell across his threshold and he came running and begging us to say nothing.

"Yes," we replied, "but don't you remember how you called us a coward for keeping still?" "I know," he replied, "but I was wrong. It is different now." And we listened even to him. There are things that an can forget with propriety. As far as we are concerned we would rather lessen the grief of a parent than throw out a morsel for the vulgar, gossiping public to feed upon. We would rather wipe away tears from the eyes of a mother than to "have nerve" enough to join a heartless crowd of flying tongues and sink the iron deeper into her tender soul. So when in this neighboring paper we failed to find what we wanted, we made no comment. But down deep in our heart we admired that editor and liked him because he had a heart that was tender, and he would rather listen to the jibes of an unfeeling public than to the sobs of the heartbroken mother and wife.

Realism.

A certain fiction writer applied to a friend, an interne in a hospital, for some local color for a tale he had based upon an occurrence in such an institution.

The interne couldn't think of anything of moment, but the writer jogged his memory thus:

"Surely you know of some realistic bit here that I could use."

"I have it," suddenly exclaimed the interne.

"Yes," eagerly came from the writer, "Here is realism with a vengeance," said the youthful interne. "One of our patients walked in his sleep because he dreamed he had no car fare."—New York Globe.

Since the institution was opened improvements and additions have been going on steadily under the direction of the state board of control. Much of the improvements have to do with the farm and the industrial plant. These two furnish employment for the patients and go far towards reducing the expense of maintenance. Under the new order of things all patients able to do so are required to work six hours a day and this is supplemented by small tasks which employ their time and minds. There is a library and a recreation room.

There are 47 precincts in the county, with 26 heard from and 21 to be reported.

In the vote for congressman of the Sixth district, Lindbergh leads with a vote of 862 from the 26 precincts named. DuBois, democrat, is next with 349. Thomason, socialist, follows with 315 and Sharkey, progressive, is last with 99 votes.

Twenty-three precincts in Morrison county, with 13 to hear from, give Lindbergh 1271 and DuBois 778. Gardner, for state senate, in 26 precincts in Crow Wing county, polled 786 and Johnson 721. Twenty-three precincts from Morrison county, with 13 to hear from, give Gardner 1063 and Johnson 995. The election of Gardner is predicted.

More Than One Trafalgar Square.

The Scotland Yard examination which would be taxicab drivers have to undergo in the knowledge of London is no more matter of form. "If," asked the inquisitor recently of a candidate, "a fare hails you in Trafalgar square and asks to be driven to Trafalgar square, what would you do?" "I should drive him around a bit and drop him on the other side of the square," replied the candidate. And he was turned down, for he did not know that London has three Trafalgar squares besides the finest site in Europe—one in Camberwell, another in Chelsea and still another one in Stepney.—London Chronicle.

CLOSE RUNS FOR CONGRESS

Democrats May Make Gains in Minnesota Districts.

St. Paul, Nov. 4.—Democrats seem to have at least held their own in the congressional election in Minnesota. They elected their man in the Fourth district, Ramsey county. It looks as though a Democrat might defeat Lindbergh in the Sixth and there is a possibility of a Democrat winning in the Second district, which was represented by W. S. Hammond.

In the new Tenth a Progressive may be elected. Republicans may be cut down to six representatives from Minnesota.

Meager returns in the congressional race outside of Ramsey county indicated the election of Congressman Sydney Anderson in the First district over H. H. Witherstine; Congressman Charles R. Davis, Republican, in the Third district over Carlos Avery, Democrat; Congressman C. R. Smith in the Fifth district, Republican, over John H. Long, Democrat, and Thomas Van Lear, Socialist; Congressman Clarence B. Miller, Republican, in the Eighth district over Andrew Nelson, Democrat; Congressman Halvor Steenerson, Republican, in the Ninth over M. A. Bratland, Socialist.

Franklin F. Ellsworth, Republican Mankato, is having a hard fight in the Second with James A. Flittie, Democrat.

GIVE YOUR FARM A NAME

After that You will Consider it Your Duty to Keep the Farm up to the Good Name it Bears

Considerable discussion is going the rounds of the press regarding the naming of farms by the owners, and some good argument is indulged in it, as is attested by the following from an exchange. Give the farm a name and keep the farm up to the name. A name gives distinction, it is an expression of honest pride, it shows an interest in the place. It means something more than so many acres of brown earth, a dwelling and bars. It means a place that one feels is in the best sense the home of himself and his family. Sentiment gathers around it and crystallizes so that at last the owner does not so much ask in declining years, "How much can I get for my farm," but "Who is going to succeed him on it?" And that means a deepening and strengthening of home ties and those of locality, both of which are greatly needed in America rural life.

But for practical reasons as well as sentimental, it is wise to bestow a name upon the farm. No self-respecting man would give a good name to his farm and then keep the farm in poor condition. The sense of pride would prompt any man to do his level best. That would mean better cultivation house and barn painted, fences in good condition, better stock and crops, and more attractive appearance within and without the dwelling. There is scarcely a farm, however situated, that some appropriate name may not be given it. Landscape, a spring, clump of trees, position, historic associations, are among the many things that may suggest the name. And always remember this, that with the farmer more than anyone else, rests the solution of the problem of arresting the drift citywards. An attractive home, a home that has a distinctiveness about it, goes a long way toward the solution.

IT DOES NOT PROHIBIT

Norwegian Law Fails to Stop Sale of Liquor and Appeal is Made to Rescind the Ordinance

The Associated Press under a Christiania date line of Oct. 31st says The Norwegian press is making an almost unanimous appeal to the government to rescind the prohibition ordinance which was passed in the first excitement of the war to stop the sale of strong alcoholic beverages. Nominally fifty per cent of the Norwegian people is represented in the membership of "Teetotal Societies," and next to Finland, Norway ordinarily has the smallest per capita consumption of alcohol in the world. It is the working classes who are most largely represented in the "teetotal" membership.

The appeal for rescinding the prohibition act is based primarily on assertions that after more than two months of prohibition, prohibition has not worked. Persons who could afford it have indulged extensively in the importation of strong liquors from Denmark and Scotland. Individuals have combined to form "private stock companies" and have brought thousands of gallons every week, each person taking a keg or two for private use. Among the poorer classes complaint is made that the prohibition law has created worse conditions, prompting the concoction of such wild drinks as "self murder"—the name given to denatured alcohol flavored with oil of peppermint—and the cheapest kinds of so-called sweet wines, made from chemical products, which never saw grapes.

The police reports in Christiania show that the average number of arrests for drunkenness has been about the same as before the ordinance was passed, and in the meantime the government loses a revenue of $260,000 a month. Outside of the Teetotal societies the demand for rescinding the new law has gained headway that it is said the government may meet it.

The government has already rescinded the special law forbidding distillation of alcohol from potatoes. This is ordinarily an extensive industry in Norway, but at the outbreak of the European war it was thought necessary to stop it in order to conserve the food supply. As a matter of fact it was found that the potatoes used for this distilling process could not be kept long, there not being enough frost proof cellars for their storage. The breweries, which had also been forbidden to malt their barley, have recommended their operations.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

Red Cross Seals Commemorating Christmas to be Sold in the City

The Minnesota Public Health association has given the Crow Wing county agency for the sale of the Red Cross Xmas seals to the Security National Loan Co. Advertising material has been received and advance orders may now be placed with the company at its office on Laurel street. Heretofore, Brainerd has made a good record in the effort to stamp out tuberculosis and will do no less this season. An extra effort is to be made to reach the rural population throughout the state, and the state association earnestly requests the aid of all rural teachers. Outside of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, the first 12 agencies to turn in one hundred or more dollars will receive the services for one month of a highly trained baby welfare and tuberculosis nurse, entirely free.

Got All He Asked For. Another "meanest man" has been found. He lives in the city and conducts a thriving business. The other day a seedy individual approached him and said: "Say, mister, I'm hungry and would like to get a nickel to get a cup of coffee and a roll. I have four pennies and only need one more. Please give me a penny."

The man after searching himself said: "I haven't got a penny. All I have is a nickel. Give me your four cents in change, and I will give you the nickel."

The beggar requests that his name be not mentioned in connection with the item.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Edison and the Bee.

It is recorded that Thomas A. Edison, after watching the tremendous energy of a busy and noisy little bee, remarked:

"A real plane, a heavier than air machine of great weight, can be built as soon as we obtain something that beats the air at the rate of 200 times a second. That bee weighed 7,000 times more than his wings. If we can only get to that, get to that—the greatest thing for the sunniest wing—that is the thing. The bee's wings beat the air 300 times a second."

IT DOES NOT PROHIBIT

Norwegian Law Fails to Stop Sale of Liquor and Appeal is Made to Rescind the Ordinance

The Associated Press under a Christiania date line of Oct. 31st says The Norwegian press is making an almost unanimous appeal to the government to rescind the prohibition ordinance which was passed in the first excitement of the war to stop the sale of strong alcoholic beverages. Nominally fifty per cent of the Norwegian people is represented in the membership of "Teetotal Societies," and next to Finland, Norway ordinarily has the smallest per capita consumption of alcohol in the world. It is the working classes who are most largely represented in the "teetotal" membership.

The appeal for rescinding the prohibition act is based primarily on assertions that after more than two months of prohibition, prohibition has not worked. Persons who could afford it have indulged extensively in the importation of strong liquors from Denmark and Scotland. Individuals have combined to form "private stock companies" and have brought thousands of gallons every week, each person taking a keg or two for private use. Among the poorer classes complaint is made that the prohibition law has created worse conditions, prompting the concoction of such wild drinks as "self murderer"—the name given to denatured alcohol flavored with oil of peppermint—and the cheapest kinds of so-called sweet wines, made from chemical products, which never saw grapes.

The police reports in Christiania show that the average number of arrests for drunkenness has been about the same as before the ordinance was passed, and in the meantime the government loses a revenue of $260,000 a month. Outside of the Teetotal societies the demand for rescinding the new law has gained such headway that it is said the government may meet it.

The government has already rescinded the special law forbidding distillation of alcohol from potatoes. This is ordinarily an extensive industry in Norway, but at the outbreak of the European war it was thought necessary to stop it in order to conserve the food supply. As a matter of fact it was found that the potatoes used for this distilling process could not be kept long, there not being enough frost proof cellars for their storage. The breweries, which had also been forbidden to malt their barley, have recommended their operations.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

Red Cross Seals Commemorating Christmas to be Sold in the City

The Minnesota Public Health association has given the Crow Wing county agency for the sale of the Red Cross Xmas seals to the Security National Loan Co. Advertising material has been received and advance orders may now be placed with the company at its office on Laurel street. Heretofore, Brainerd has made a good record in the effort to stamp out tuberculosis and will do no less this season. An extra effort is to be made to reach the rural population throughout the state, and the state association earnestly requests the aid of all rural teachers. Outside of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, the first 12 agencies to turn in one hundred or more dollars will receive the services for one month of a highly trained baby welfare and tuberculosis nurse, entirely free.

Got All He Asked For.
Another "meanest man" has been found. He lives in the city and conducts a thriving business. The other day a seedy individual approached him and said: "Say, mister, I'm hungry and would like to get a nickel to get a cup of coffee and a roll. I have four pennies and only need one more. Please give me a penny."

The man after searching himself said: "I haven't got a penny. All I have is a nickel. Give me your four cents in change, and I will give you the nickel."

The beggar requests that his name be not mentioned in connection with the item.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Edison and the Bee.

It is recorded that Thomas A. Edison, after watching the tremendous energy of a busy and noisy little bee, remarked:

"A real plane, a heavier than air machine of great weight, can be built as soon as we obtain something that beats the air at the rate of 200 times a second. That bee weighed 7,000 times more than his wings. If we can only get to that, get to that—the greatest thing for the smallest wing—that is the thing. The bee's wings beat the air 300 times a second."

BRINGS TO LIGHT THE FIGHTING MAN

Youthful French Volunteer Delivers His Message, but Loses His Life.

LOSSES IN THE WAR NOW ABOVE 2,000,000.

Figures that appear in recent war dispatches indicate the appalling extent to which the losses in the war have grown.

A Copenhagen dispatch estimates the German losses during the fighting in France at 750,000. Paris hears that the allies lost 10,000 men a day in ten days' fighting over toward the Belgian coast in what has become known as the battle of Flanders. The German losses in the same battle have been correspondingly large, if not larger.

One dispatch says the Germans lost 20,000 men "in the recent fighting." Another tells of 2,000 German dead in front of one position.

All the dispatches admit that the losses in the battle which resulted in the German retreat in Poland have been enormous. In the early stages of the fighting the loss on the German side was placed by Russian reports at 40,000.

The Germans say they have more than 290,000 prisoners.

A rough estimate of the dead, wounded and missing of all the belligerents puts the number far beyond 2,000,000 men.

THAT cold and cannon cannot kill German humor is shown by a postcard written in pencil by a young German officer in the trenches on the Aisne, where he had lain for several weeks in the first line of the German forces. The contents of the card, as published in the Frankfurter Zeitung, are here given in translation:

Our hair has grown into a mane, Soap's unknown in all this dirt; We never brush our teeth, We never change our shirt, Our clothes are always soaking wet And many a time for meals we fret. Of beer or wine, alas, alas! We get no bottle, keg or glass. In leaky shoes our cold toes squish, And mud and mire our faces splash. The only things that still are dry Are German Humor, friend and I. And yet this heroism Is not without its charms, We're drawn by rheumatism To valiant force of arms.

"Wounds Make You Grow."

Gustave Chatin, fifteen years old, a Paris gamin and a soldier, who was brought to the hospital in Paris, after he had been playing at war like a man, has gone again to the front. He wished to continue his game of war, having an ambition to capture a flag.

The good sisters who had been nursing his wounds were unable to restrain him, especially since an army lieutenant had given him a uniform with the congratulations of the officers of the regiment.

His father took him to the recruiting office. When the father told Gustave where they were going the boy leaped from his bed.

"Bully," he cried, and jumped into his clothes in feverish haste.

Some one suggested teasingly that he would be rejected because he was so small.

"A wound is like soup, it makes you grow," retorted the boy. "Anyway, if they refuse me I will find a way to wiggle to the front ranks."

Set Forest on Fire With Foes.

A number of interesting episodes of the recent fighting between the Russians on the one side and the Germans and Austrians on the other are beginning to find their way into print.

Opposite Kozentze, where thick woods run almost to Radom, the Germans filled the whole forest with troops, including some heavy artillery. The latter in fancied security and well concealed was doing a good deal of exciting practice without effecting anything in particular, but the German infantry under this admirable cover for a long time prevented the Russians from making much of an impression.

At length several small bodies of volunteers from the ranks stalked the German lines, got around into three or four suitable spots and fired the forest. The wind aiding it, the conflagration spread with terrible rapidity, and thousands of Germans were suffocated by the dense smoke or burned alive. When it was seen that the fire had gained a good hold the Germans dropped everything and fled, but the forest had been fired in too many places for the panic-stricken troops to escape, and few ever got away.

Owes His Life to His Horse.

Trooper S. Stanley of the Royal Scots Greys, writing to a friend in Edinburgh, says: "I owe my own life and that of perhaps a whole army to my old horse. I was on outpost duty at a lonely spot, and, though I could not hear or see anything, my horse kept neighing and betraying signs of restlessness."

"I got down and came on a German grunting in the long grass. He had a sword bayonet and evidently meant to get me unawares, and then the post would have been rubbed. I didn't wait to ask his intentions, but let him have a kick for another country."

His yell brought his mates down,

MANY MEMBERS OF HOUSE TO RETIRE

Some Go to Senate and Others Stay at Home.

WILSON'S AID TO CANDIDATES

His Letters Held to Be Great Help to Democrats Opposed by Strong Republicans or Progressives—Clark Nominates Mann as Logical G. O. P. Candidate For President in 1916.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 3.—[Special.]—No matter how the election goes there are quite a number of men who have become prominent in the house of representatives who will not be members of the next house. They either retired voluntarily or were defeated in the primaries. The most prominent of all is Oscar W. Underwood, who for two terms has been a successful leader of the majority and retires from the house to take a seat in the senate.

Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia will also go to the senate, but he will take his seat when the next session convenes. It is also expected Charles R. Burke of South Dakota will be elected to the senate. A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania gave up a sure seat in the house to try for the senate in Pennsylvania.

Others Who Will Be Missed.

Among others who will retire and who have gained more or less prominence in the house are Hobson and Taylor of Alabama, Floyd of Arkansas, Knowland of California, who is a candidate for the senate; Bartlett of Georgia, one of the old time southern representatives; French of Idaho, Prouty of Iowa, Neely and Murdock of Kansas, both candidates for the senate; Stanley of Kentucky, who sought a senate seat; Broussard of Louisiana, already elected to the senate; Barthold of Missouri, who has represented St. Louis for twenty years; Calder of Brooklyn, who was a candidate for the senate; Metz, Levy and Henry George, New York city members; Willis and Whitacre of Ohio, Bird McGuire, who has been representing Oklahoma ever since the state was admitted; Bryan and Falconer, two Progressives from Washington. Frank Lindquist, who made a meteoric mail order campaign and promised to pass a pure fabric bill, will be among the missing after having one term in the house.

One Who Stood Alone.

Frank O. Smith of Maryland is another man who will not return. He stood alone as an advocate of giving the panhandle of Alaska to Canada. Most of his speeches, either spoken or printed, advocated disposing of southwestern Alaska in this manner in order to promote the cause of peace. No other man in the house supported the Maryland man in this fantastic proposition.

The Wilson Letters.

There will be some curiosity to see what effect the letters of President Wilson personally endorsing different Democrats will have in the various states and districts. Generally these personal endorsements have been sent to men having the hardest kind of a fight on their hands. Chamberlain of Oregon is one of the men that received a letter. Then there was O'Hair of Illinois. His letter became important because his opponent was our old friend, Uncle Joe Cannon. Quite a number of other men received the personal stamp of presidential approval, and even if they are defeated they will have a good autograph.

Champ Nominates Jim.

Turn about is only fair play. Many times and oft Jim Mann nominated Champ Clark for president. Now Champ turns around and tells his people that Jim Mann is the logical candidate for the Republicans in 1916, giving the minority leader many kind words.

The trouble with this sort of nominations is that they seldom land any man as head of the ticket. I have heard Tom Reed, Joe Cannon and Champ Clark handed these nominations at different times, yet none of them ever scored in the national conventions.

Want to Come Back.

Out in Illinois there is quite an array of stand pat Republicans who "want to come back." Besides Uncle Joe Cannon, there are William W. Wilson, George E. Foss, Charles E. Fuller, John A. Sterling, William B. McKinley and William A. Rodenberg. These men were defeated on account of bull moose candidates running in their districts two years ago and the large Roosevelt vote cast in Illinois. They have two candidates against them now, but they hope that the bull moose vote will fall away to such an extent as to return them to congress. If all of them should be elected it would be quite a blow to the Progressive party, as all of them are anti-Roosevelt. It would mean that there would be a bitter fight before Roosevelt could secure the regular Republican endorsement in 1916.

Academy of Arts and Literature.

As long ago as April, 1913, Senator Lodge introduced a bill incorporating the American Academy of Arts and Literature. Senator Culberson recently reported the bill to the senate. Fifty men are named as incorporators.

BATTLE LINES SO CLOSE THAT SOLDIERS OFTEN TALK WITH FOES

British Cook Lost His Way Between Trenches; Nearly Fed the Germans.

Little Stories of Interest From the Scene of War In Europe.

THROUGHOUT much of the warfare in Belgium and France, the entrenched lines of the German and the allied armies approach each other so closely that the soldiers on each side, when not firing, can observe quietly the movements of the men opposing them. Sometimes the trenches are only a few hundred yards apart.

In regard to this a lieutenant of an English regiment of infantry, holding Champagne, told a war correspondent that a cook of his company had only finished cooking dinner late at night. The regimental wagons had gone astray and only joined the column after 8 o'clock. When the meat had been prepared the cook started off, carrying it on a large grill a yard square. The cook lost his way in the darkness and after wandering about came across a trench. "Is this the Sixth company?" he asked. To his astonishment the soldier he addressed rose to his feet, and the cook saw that he wore a spiked helmet. The cook turned and ran for his life, followed by a storm of bullets. Strange to say, out of 100 shots fired only one hit him, inflicting a slight wound on the left arm, but the cook brought back his grilled beef dinner intact, although cold.

The hostile trenches in some places are so close that the soldiers occasionally throw hand grenades across. Wherever a head shows above the ground it receives a volley. At this short range the rifle bullets make fearful wounds. The men on both sides amuse themselves by raising caps on the points of their bayonets, with the result that the head coverings are instantly riddled with bullets.

Loud voiced dialogues also occur somewhat in this fashion:

"Hello, Frenchies?"

"How are you, Boches (Germans)?"

"How many men are there in your trench?"

"Two army corps."

Crack, crack! The bullets are alighting low across the turf close to the men taking part in the conversation. Sometimes the smallest incident precipitates a battle. In one case a cow wandered close to a French trench, and a soldier leaped out to milk it. The Germans opened fire, and the French responded until the milking was done and the dairyman descended unscathed into the trench with his pail.

A shell burst near the cow, which walked calmly toward the spot where the projectile exploded to inspect the hole in the ground. However, a moment later she was killed by a bullet and fell with her four legs sticking stiffly in the air like a Noah's ark animal.

City's Ransom Cured Prince.

One of the highest doctor's fees on record has been paid, according to the Paris Matin, in German gold at Epernay, France.

When the Germans occupied Epernay on their southward march they demanded an indemnity of 50,000 bottles of champagne, worth about $35,000. These the mayor duly produced.

Soon afterward in their retreat from the Marne they brought to Epernay a dangerously wounded imperial prince on whom an immediate operation was necessary.

As no German surgeons were present who were competent to handle the case, they appealed on humanitarian grounds to the French doctor, Veron, who successfully performed the operation.

The Germans offered him a "prince's honorarium," telling him to name his own fee.

Dr. Veron promptly asked $35,000, which was at once paid in gold.

Praise For Our Consul at Ghent.

Belgian refugees in London are loud in their praise of Henry A. Johnson, the American consul at Ghent. They say they owe their lives to his firmness. When aboard one of the last steamboats leaving Ostend for Folkestone an officer of gendarmes ordered all civilians ashore, saying the vessel had been commandeered for army uses. "It has not," said Mr. Johnson. "Come aboard, folks."

The officer made a motion to draw a revolver, but did not.

"Come on, folks," said Mr. Johnson again. They did, and the officer of gendarmes disappeared.

Germans' Advantage In Language.

"One of the greatest needs of the allies is interpreters for both the French and British troops," says a London Standard correspondent. "When I have been in ordinary and armored motorcars this last week we have had to make peasants go in front as guides and have been absolutely at their mercy, with only the fear of our rifles to deter them from leading us straight to the Germans. When we invade Germany it will be still worse, for we won't be able to trust anybody. For English troops an interpreter who in English and can understand the Scotch, Welsh, Yorkshire and White-er warships are not allowed to go to their assistance, is shown by the announcement that the admiralty is arranging for a general supply of swimming collars to be distributed to the officers and men of the fleet.

The men are ordered to carry the collar when they are awake, and the device is to be kept inflated and near each individual when he is asleep.

Capitals and Armies.

Twice the United States has lost its capital to a foreign foe, but neither time did it produce much effect upon the war. The first time was when Howe's redcoats swept into Philadelphia after the battle of Brandywine. The other occasion was when another British army seized and burned Washington. What Howe needed to end the war in 1777 was not Philadelphia, but Washington's army, and that he didn't get. A country's army is worth a dozen capitals. The British captured America's three largest cities, Boston, New York and Philadelphia, but that availed them little in the long run.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Fort Sumter.

For four years Fort Sumter, in Charleston harbor, resisted every attempt at its capture. For 280 days the fort was actually under fire. "The duration of the three principal and eight minor bombardments was altogether 157 days and 116 nights. The total weight of metal thrown against the fort from land and sea aggregated 3,500 tons, and of this great mass the fort was actually struck by 2,400 tons. The number of projectiles fired against the fort was 46,058.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The World Magnet.

Magnet is derived from the name of the city of Magnesia, in Asia Minor, where the properties of the lodestone are said to have been discovered. It has, however, been asserted that the name comes from Magnes, the name of a shepherd who discovered magnetic power by being held on Mount Ida, in Greece, by its attraction for the nails in his shoes.

TRUTH.

Truth is so estimable a quality that it will not permit of any tampering. Like a mirror, to breathe upon it with cold falsehood only makes it reflect a dim image of its purity. An untruthful man is a man always to be feared.

WAR IN EUROPE BRINGS TO LIGHT MANY SIDES OF THE FIGHTING MAN

Grim and Strange Incidents of Most Terrible of World's Struggles.

Youthful French Volunteer Delivers His Message, but Loses His Life.

LOSSES IN THE WAR NOW ABOVE 2,000,000.

Figures that appear in recent war dispatches indicate the appalling extent to which the losses in the war have grown. A Copenhagen dispatch estimates the German losses during the fighting in France at 750,000. Paris hears that the allies lost 10,000 men a day in ten days' fighting over toward the Belgian coast in what has become known as the battle of Flanders. The German losses in the same battle have been correspondingly large, if not larger.

One dispatch says the Germans lost 20,000 men "in the recent fighting." Another tells of 2,000 German dead in front of one position.

All the dispatches admit that the losses in the battle which resulted in the German retreat in Poland have been enormous. In the early stages of the fighting the loss on the German side was placed by Russian reports at 40,000.

The Germans say they have more than 296,000 prisoners. A rough estimate of the dead, wounded and missing of all the belligerents puts the number far beyond 2,000,000 men.

THAT cold and cannon cannot kill German humor is shown by a postcard written in pencil by a young German officer in the trenches on the Aisne, where he had lain for several weeks in the first line of the German forces. Some Go to Senate and Others Stay at Home.

WILSON'S AID TO CANDIDATES

His Letters Held to Be Great Help to Democrats Opposed by Strong Republicans or Progressives—Clark Nominates Mann as Logical G. O. P. Candidate For President in 1916.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 3.—[Special.] No matter how the election goes there are quite a number of men who have become prominent in the house of representatives who will not be members of the next house. They either retired voluntarily or were defeated in the primaries. The most prominent of all is Oscar W. Underwood, who for two terms has been a successful leader of the majority and retires from the house to take a seat in the senate.

Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia will also go to the senate, but he will take his seat when the next session convenes. It is also expected Charles R. Burke of South Dakota will be elected to the senate. A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania gave up a sure seat in the house to try for the senate in Pennsylvania.

Others Who Will Be Missed.

Among others who will retire and who have gained more or less prominence in the house are Hobson and Taylor of Alabama, Floyd of Arkansas, Knowland of California, who is a candidate for the senate; Bartlett of Georgia, one of the old time southern representatives; French of Idaho, Prouty of Iowa, Neely and Murdock of Kansas, both candidates for the senate; Stanley of Kentucky, who sought a senate seat; Bruns of Louisiana, already elected to the senate; Bartholdt of Missouri, who has represented St. Louis for twenty years; Calder of Brooklyn, who was a candidate for the senate; Metz, Levy and Henry George, New York city members; Willis and Whitacre of Ohio, Bird McGuire, who has been representing Oklahoma ever since the state was admitted; Bryan and Falcner, two Progressives from Washington. Frank Lindquist, who made a meteoric mail order campaign and promised to pass a pure fabric bill, will be among the missing after having one term in the house.

One Who Stood Alone.

Frank O. Smith of Maryland is another man who will not return. He stood alone as an advocate of giving the panhandle of Alaska to Canada. Most of his speeches, either spoken or printed, advocated disposing of southwestern Alaska in this manner in order to promote the cause of peace. No other man in the house supported the Maryland man in this fantastic proposition.

The Wilson Letters.

There will be some curiosity to see what effect the letters of President Wilson personally endorsing different Democrats will have in the various states and districts. Generally these personal endorsements have been sent to men having the hardest kind of a fight on their hands. Chamberlain of Oregon is one of the men that received a letter. Then there was O'Hair of Illinois. His letter became important because his opponent was our old friend, Uncle Joe Cannon. Quite a number of other men received the personal stamp of presidential approval, and even if they are defeated they will have a good advertisement.

Champ Nominates Jim.

Turn about is only fair play. Many times and oft Jim Mann nominated Champ Clark for president. Now Champ turns around and tells his people that Jim Mann is the logical candidate for the Republicans in 1916, giving the minority leader many kind words.

The trouble with this sort of nominations is that they seldom land any man as head of the ticket. I have heard Tom Reed, Joe Cannon and Champ Clark handed these nominations at different times, yet none of them ever scored in the national conventions.

Want to Come Back.

Out in Illinois there is quite an array of stand pat Republicans who "want to come back." Besides Uncle Joe Cannon, there are William W. Wilson, George E. Foss, Charles E. Fuller, John A. Sterling, William B. McKinley and William A. Rodenberg. These men were defeated on account of bill mouse candidates running in their districts two years ago and the large Roosevelt vote cast in Illinois. They have two candidates against them now, but they hope that the bill mouse vote will fall away to such an extent as to return them to congress. If all of them should be elected it would be quite a blow to the Progressive party, as all of them are anti-Roosevelt. It would mean that there would be a bitter fight before Roosevelt could secure the regular Republican endorsement in 1916.

Academy of Arts and Literature.

As long ago as April, 1913, Senator Lodge introduced a bill incorporating the American Academy of Arts and Literature. Senator Culberson recently reported the bill to the senate. Fifty men are named as incorporators.

BATTLE LINES SO CLOSE THAT SOLDIERS OFTEN TALK WITH FOES

British Cook Lost His Way Between Trenches; Nearly Fed the Germans.

Little Stories of Interest From the Scene of War in Europe.

THROUGHOUT much of the warfare in Belgium and France, the entrenched lines of the German and the allied armies approach each other so closely that the soldiers on each side, when not firing, can observe quietly the movements of the men opposing them. Sometimes the trenches are only a few hundred yards apart.

In regard to this a lieutenant of an English regiment of infantry, holding a champagne glass, told a war correspondent that a cook of his company had only finished cooking dinner late at night. The regimental wagons had gone astray and only joined the column after 8 o'clock. When the meat had been prepared the cook started off, carrying it on a large grill a yard square. The cook lost his way in the darkness and after wandering about came across a trench. "Is this the Sixth company?" he asked. To his astonishment the soldier he addressed rose to his feet, and the cook saw that he wore a spiked helmet. The cook turned and ran for his life, followed by a storm of bullets. Strange to say, out of 100 shots fired only one hit him, inflicting a slight wound on the left arm, but the cook brought back his grilled beef dinner intact, although cold.

The hostile trenches in some places are so close that the soldiers occasionally throw hand grenades across. Wherever a hand shows above the ground it receives a volley. At this short range the rifle bullets make fearful wounds. The men on both sides amuse themselves by raising caps on the points of their bayonets, with the result that the head coverings are instantly riddled with bullets.

Loud voiced dialogues also occur somewhat in this fashion:

"Hello, Frenchies!"

"How are you, Boches (Germans)?"

"How many men are there in your trench?"

"Two army corps."

"Crack, crack! The bullets are nipping low across the turf close to the men taking part in the conversation. Sometimes the smallest incident precipitates a battle. In one case a cow wandered close to a French trench, and a soldier leaped out to milk it. The Germans opened fire, and the French responded until the milking was done and the dairyman descended unscathed into the trench with his pail.

A shell burst near the cow, which walked calmly toward the spot where the projectile exploded to inspect the hole in the ground. However, a moment later she was killed by a bullet and fell with her four legs sticking stiffly in the air like a Noah's ark animal.

City's Ransom Cured Prince.

One of the highest doctor's fees on record has been paid, according to the Paris Matin, in German gold at Epernay, France.

When the Germans occupied Epernay on their southward march they demanded an indemnity of 50,000 bottles of champagne, worth about $35,000. These the mayor duly produced.

Soon afterward in their retreat from the Marne they brought to Epernay a dangerously wounded imperial prince on whom an immediate operation was necessary.

As no German surgeons were present who were competent to handle the case, they appealed on humanitarian grounds to the French doctor, Veron, who successfully performed the operation.

The Germans offered him a "princely honorarium," telling him to name his own fee.

Dr. Veron promptly asked $35,000, which was at once paid in gold.

Praise For Our Consul at Ghent.

Belgian refugees in London are loud in their praise of Henry A. Johnson, the American consul at Ghent. They say they owe their lives to his firmness. When aboard one of the last steamboats leaving Ostend for Folkestone an officer of Germans ordered all civilians ashore, saying the vessel had been commandeered for army uses. "It has not," said Mr. Johnson. "Come aboard, folks."

The officer made a motion to draw a revolver, but did not.

"Come on, folks," said Mr. Johnson again. They did, and the officer of Germans disappeared.

Germans' Advantage in Language.

"One of the greatest needs of the allies is interpreters for both the French and British troops," says a London Standard correspondent. "When I have been in ordinary and armored motorcars this last week we have had to make peasants go in front as guides and have been absolutely at their mercy, with only the fear of our rifles to deter them from leading us straight to the Germans. When we invade Germany it will be still worse, for we won't be able to trust anybody. For English troops an interpreter who is English and can understand the Scotch, Welsh, Yorkshire and Whitechapel dialects is worth far more than any Frenchman or Fleming who may speak a local language better, but can seldom understand properly what the average British 'Tommy' says to him.

"I regard this inexhaustible supply of men who know local languages as one of the chief factors of German efficiency in the war. The allies need absolutely all the interpreters they can get and are suffering for lack of them. Very few British officers and hardly any soldiers speak even serviceable French. Over and over again I have myself been deliberately misled by apparent peasants who, I felt sure, were German spies."

Queer Dress at the Front.

The Morning Post has received a letter from an officer at the front containing an amusing description of the weird headgear and clothing that the troops have adopted, having lost their own.

He says he saw men wearing all sorts of civilian caps, soft felt hats and straw hats, such as Mexicans wear, while there were quaint makeshifts—for instance, a khaki cover for a cap.

An orderly was wearing a woman's bodice, and a lot of members of one company were wearing women's underclothing, their own being worn out.

How a British General Met Death.

A letter received in London from an officer friend of Major General Hubert L. W. Hamilton, whose body has been brought to England, tells how the general met his end on the French battle field.

"He was standing with a group in a covered place," the officer writes, "when a shrapnel shell burst 100 yards away. A bullet pierced General Hamilton's temple, and he was killed on the spot. No other member of the group was scratched."

"It was a fine death, but I know how the general would have felt to be taken before his work was done."

The funeral service, the officer adds, was held while shells were bursting all around. The din was so great that the chaplain's voice was drowned.

Animals in the War News.

To save her horses from the German army Denmark passed a law that no horse under five years old could be exported, so German dealers pull the teeth of young horses to make them appear old and eligible for export.

One hundred prize beef cattle objected to dying for their country while being taken to the slaughter house in Bordeaux and escaped into the country, where they are foraging in small bands and making the peasants think the ulians are upon them.

Heavy fighting in Galicia has brought out in wild alarm all the beasts and birds of the forests. The scent of blood from battlefields has made the wolves so fierce they even pursue the victors after a battle into camp.

Swimming Collars For Britons.
